Title	Friedrich Brothers Music House papers
Date [inclusive]	1881-1952
Extent	2.23 Linear feet Four boxes
Language	English
Abstract	The Friedrich Brothers Music House Collection includes the papers of a general music dealer in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Their merchandise included pianos, organs, music and musical supplies, ca. 1882-1929. The firm became recognized as the most extensive music business in the city and one of the largest in the state, serving all of Western Michigan. It was established by Paul W. and Otto D.T. Friedrich as Friedrich Brothers in 1873, and later assumed by their brother, Julius A.J. Friedrich. This collection primarily illustrates everyday business proceedings through correspondence for the years 1881 and 1882. Also included are various programs, pamphlets, and advertisements, which reflect the music business during later years. The collection contains correspondence, receipts, a contract, business forms, clippings, miscellany, memorabilia, theater programs, instruction booklets, trade catalogs, a musician's directory, ledgers, advertisements, pamphlets, sheet music, publications, a map and photographs.

Biographical/Historical note

Paul W. and Otto D.T. Friedrich established Friedrich Brothers Music House at no. 30 and 32 Canal Street in 1873. Another brother, Julius A.J. Friedrich, took a position as clerk in 1875. In 1881 Paul W. retired, leaving Otto as the sole proprietor until he admitted Julius into partnership in 1884. In the same year Otto died, and Julius A. J. continued the business in his own name. Julius incorporated the store in 1914 as Friedrich's Music House upon bringing his sons Hugo, Julius, Jr., and Herman, into the business.

The Friedrich Music House occupied four floors in its own building and the third floor of the building adjoining on the north. The first floor contained sheet music, musical merchandise departments and the counting room. The second floor housed the piano sales rooms, that included such brands as Weber, A.B. Chase, Fischer, Franklin, Hobart M. Cable, Hoffman and others. The front portion of the third floor was maintained as an auxiliary piano salesroom. The rear of the third floor housed thousands of talking machine records. The corresponding floor of the building adjoining on the north was occupied in the rear by two large audience rooms where customers could listen to the playing of any record on either the Edison or Victor talking machine. The front part of the third floor was used as a wholesale department for records and talking machines. The basement of the building was also used for this purpose. The fourth floor was divided into studios, with a large reserve space for organs. In the rear of this floor was the repair shop.

The Friedrich Bros. Music House continued in the above location at 30-32 Canal Street until 1911. It was then located at 206 Monroe Ave., NW for 20 years. In 1931 it moved to 19 S. Division and again relocated to 44 S. Division in 1937 where it remained until closing in the 1950's.

John Sharps Robbins (1853-1929), whose correspondence as a salesman for the Friedrich Bros. is included in the collection, was manager of the piano department for 33 years. He came to Grand Rapids from Stewartville, New Jersey, already an accomplished pianist.

Series I: Correspondence

Collection InventorySeries I: Correspondence*Scope and Contents note

Correspondence, receipts, miscellaneous, contracts, business forms, clippings, memorabilia, theater programs, instruction booklets, trade catalogs, musician's directory, ledgers, advertisements, pamphlets, sheet music, publications, and photographs. The largest part of the collection concerns the business correspondence from the years 1881 and 1882. The correspondence includes letters from customers, suppliers, and their own salesmen. The collection also contains various items that document the different aspects of a music business from suppliers to competitors to advertising. The papers provide an interesting inside look at relations with their business associates, their customers, their salesmen, and even within the Friedrich family.

The General Business Correspondence (1881-1882) consists of letters from customers with complaints or orders, letters from businesses selling for the Friedrich Bros. on consignment, letters from potential employees, and other letters concerning business matters. It also includes correspondence from Roe Stephens Co., a competitor, concerning territorial disputes.

The Payment Letters Correspondence (1881-1882) consists of letters from customers with which payment on their account was enclosed.

The Overdue Accounts Correspondence (1881-1882) includes 11 letters from customers explaining why they could not make payment on their accounts. These letters reflect many hardships typical of the time.

The J. S. Robbins Correspondence (1882, n.d.) contains letters and telegrams Mr. Robbins sent to the Friedrich Bros. during his sales trips throughout western Michigan. The correspondence primarily charts his progress.

The E. H. Robbins Correspondence (1881-1882) consists of the letters and telegrams of another salesman, E. H. Robbins, to the Friedrich Bros. also on sales trips in western Michigan.

Series I: Correspondence

The Organ and Piano Suppliers Correspondence (1881-1882) is the correspondence from suppliers to the Freidrich Bros. concerning orders and payment on their account. It includes a folder of miscellaneous suppliers and separate folders for large suppliers A. B. Chase Organ Co., J. and C. Fischer, A. Weber, and the Music House of C. J. Whitney. The Weber and Whitney folders also contain telegrams.

The Music Suppliers Correspondence (1882) contains the correspondence from suppliers of sheet music and music books. It includes one folder of miscellaneous suppliers and one folder from S. Brainard's Sons. The first folder contains an advertising letter and promotional copy of the 12th Street Rag, dated 1920.

The Telegrams. Correspondence (1881-1882) includes miscellaneous telegrams from customers.

The Friedrich Bros. Correspondence (1881-1882) includes 3 letters from the Friedrich Bros. to customers concerning payment or orders.

The Otto Friedrich Correspondence (1881-1882) contains 8 letters and 4 telegrams signed by Otto Freidrich. It includes correspondence from Otto back to the store during his business trips and correspondence to his "Friend Wagner."

The Miscellaneous Correspondence (1882,1894,1907) consists of 5 letters not directly related to the business of the Friedrich Brothers. Four are announcements and one is in reference to a credit rating.

The Personal Correspondence (1882) includes 2 letters from Alpha Childs, a friend of the Friedrich Brothers. One letter discusses Grand Rapids and the Germans.

Receipts and letter written in German. The Receipts (1891, 1917, 1920) contains three receipt that deal with a firm advertising order, and the personal grocery and freight receipts of Julius A.J.

Ledgers (1890, n.d.) consists of 2 ledgers imprinted with Star Clothing House with nondescript figures inside.

Business Forms (n.d.) contains examples of the firm's blank forms, including payment agreements, gift certificates, order forms (as well as an order form and envelope from Hinners Organ Co.).
