Summary Information

Repository:	Grand Rapids Public Library, Grand Rapids History and Special Collections Department
Title:	Grand Rapids Press collection at the Grand Rapids Public Library
ID:	Collection 297
Date [inclusive]:	1892-2009
Physical Description:	31.9 Linear Feet
Language of the Material:	English
Abstract:	The Grand Rapids Press is the longest running newspaper in Grand Rapids, Michigan and is still actively published. This collection contains newspaper clippings, images and documents about the Press and by the Press, given to the Library from a variety of sources. The collection is not comprehensive in its content, but offers a sampling of the history of the newspaper. Early items relate to the Newsboys and Newsboys Band. Also included are negatives for news stories from the 1960s and 1970s. Images of notable people and events from the late 1990s through 2000s are also included. Researchers wishing to use images in this collection should contact the Grand Rapids Press for permission.

Scope and Contents

Materials included in this collection are those which were discarded by the Grand Rapids Press, and Press staff, during past years. In some cases, materials may have been removed from the trash by others, who found value in the content, and brought it to the Library.
